Thanksgiving Day. E., Sasha and I left Orly by Pan American at 11:00 o'clock this morning. Had turkey and cranberry sauce for lunch; the process of digestion was just setting in when we arrived at Rome about 2:00 p.m. Jim and Ashley met us, hurdled us over customs formalities, and off we drove in their sumptuous Rolls to Villa Wolkonsky.

Later, I had myself deposited in Piazza di Spagna and walked back via beautiful St. John the Lateran to the British Embassy residence, where we dined in profusion and slept in contentment.
